ADMISSION, TRANSFER, OR SCHOLARSHIP ESSAYS

DO:

1. Answer the questions

Carefully read the questions you are asked, and be sure to answer them.

2. Tell a story

Help your readers get to know you as a person by sharing examples and anecdotes to illustrate your qualities, strengths, and experiences. Use concrete details to help the committee members imagine you as a person.

3. Be yourself

Imagine you're having a conversation with the admissions committee. Write in a formal, but conversational style. Don't try to impress by using an excessively academic tone or overly complicated language. If you're in doubt, ask someone who knows you well, "Does this sound like me?"

4. Be specific about why you want to attend your chosen college or how you will benefit from a particular scholarship

For admission and transfer essays, be sure to discuss your academic and career goals and how this college will help you achieve them. Provide concrete examples and details. Research the college, but be careful not to just quote or paraphrase the website or brochure. Instead, specifically address aspects of the college or its programs that truly appeal to you and will help you meet your goals.

For scholarship essays, in addition to discussing your academic and career goals, address how this money will help you achieve those goals. Be as specific as possible. Will you use the money for tuition? Books? A laptop to help you complete assignments? Transportation?

5. Show how you will contribute to the college

Colleges seek students who will contribute to the academic and cultural life of their campuses. If you have contributed to your college, high school, or community through tutoring, service work, or extra-curricular activities, share some examples.

6. Address any low grades or other issues directly

Take responsibility for your record and explain what steps you have taken to improve your academic performance. It's fine to discuss any challenges you have faced, but don't use them as an excuse.

7. Proofread!

An essay with even one grammatical mistake or spelling error will affect the impression you make.

RE: Mr. John Doe Child Custody Case

To The Honorable Judge _____

It is a genuine honor to write this letter in favor of Mr. Doe gaining custody over his child, Jack Doe. As a co-worker of John, I have known him for over five years. In that time, we have quickly become friends outside of the workplace. John Doe has always struck me as an intelligent human being of good character. It is my firm belief that he and his daughter will be an excellent family unit.

As a friend of the family and a co-worker of John's, I've watched how his child, Jack, and he have formed the healthy bond that fathers and sons should form. John has always been an integral part of Jack's life by providing the support and guidance of a good father. In fact, John has never missed one of Jack's baseball games, even when he was sick. As for Jack, he looks up to John a great deal and I honestly can't imagine one without the other. The two of them are a great family. I truly believe it would be in both John and Jack's best interests for John to have custody of his son.

It is my hope that you take note of my letter of recommendation for John Doe to have custody of Jack Doe. John Doe is a good friend, a valuable co-worker, and an incredible father-figure who would excel at raising Jack Doe.

Sincerely,

Techniques for Effective Grantwriting

Identifying a funding source and developing and writing a successful grant proposal can be challenging. Applying for small grant amounts may involve as much work as applying for large grants. Below are some suggestions for developing and writing a successful proposal to fund your project.

Step 1. Develop program idea and research funding resources

A. Clearly define program idea, purpose and mission statement

Potential funders need to understand exactly what you are asking them to support, and what the benefits will be to the target population and community.

- Define the intervention program you would like to implement.
- Research whether this intervention program has been tried before.
- See if the program has been evaluated and consider evaluation results and recommendations.
- Consider the setting in which the program has been previously implemented and compare that to the proposed setting.

B. Identify the right funding sources

Target funders that have an interest in the program community you serve, or in the type of program you wish to implement. Foundation centers, computerized databases, staton development offices, publications, and public libraries are examples of resources available to assist you in your funding search.

- Do not limit funding search to one type of funder, such as private foundations. Look for government grant opportunities (federal, state and local.) United Way agencies, and other funding sources as well.

When you acquire an academic scholarship to your college or high school, it is a long process. In general, you can understand and judge the applicant's IQ skills and level. You must be having admission hours for your college. The letter from the formality scholarship must be formally written, as it is a legal document with an objective. This is how they communicate with students who need a scholarship. Fake information may lead your letter to not be recognized or, in the worst case, an individual's scholarship letter may not be accepted in other institutions, because he or she has a bad record when writing false information in a scholarship letter. I've used scholarship letters for a long time. You can also see the form or form institute that provides scholarships always need such forms. Letter of application of scholarship for the application of scholarships is a document sent to an organization or institution that offers scholarships. The content of this letter must be a message of appreciation and how useful the scholarship will be for the education of individuals. Normally, a scholarship letter would be written by a student who acquires a scholarship application, an organization that offers financial assistance for educational purposes or an educational institution that offers scholarship grants. It is important to show how happy an individual is by the grant application granted, because it creates a genuine confidence that the scholarship will not be wasted.
